This Convention met pursuant to the call, at Croton Hall, on the morning of the 5th. There were about thirty persons present as delegates from kindred societies, whose earnest and intelligent manner impressed us favorably. The meeting was called to order by Alvin C. Bovay, the Secretary of the ciation; and after the appointment of L. W. all persons who wished to take part in the proceedings of the Convention, might do so upon giving in their names to the Secretary. Messrs. Evans, Bovay, Pierson, Wilson, and Allibon, were appointed a committee to nominate officers and prepare rules for the Convention. Messrs. Parke Godwin, Ryckman, Bovay, Thornburgh, and Moon were appointed a committee to report resolutions. The Convention then adjourned, to meet at 2 P. M., when the committee reported the following gentleen as officers of the Convention :- President, J. lerson, of New York ; Vice Presidents : L. W. Ryckman, of Brook Farm; John Speakman, of Philadelphia; J. D. Thornburgh, of Pittsburg, F. C. Trendwell, of Brooklyn, and Ransom Smith, of New York. Secretaries: L. Masquerier, G. W. Robins, and Dr. Newbery, of Pittsburg

Robins, and Dr. Newbery, of Pittsburg
PARKE GODWIN, from the committee on resolutions, reported a series of resolutions. Mr. Godwin supported the resolutions by a few pertinent, though rather general remarks. He said that the time had come when men should meet together with an eye single to the good of all—not to build up this church or that creed, but to establish a universal church, embracing all, and having for its object the clevation of poor, fallen humanity. And, although he might differ with the majority of the persons present, yet all who aspire to a better state, and who strive to meliorate the condition of their fellow men, though differing somewhat in creed, have something in common.

neighbor, desirous of assisting his friend, and yet wishing to secure himself, takes a morigage for the amount en the goods and chattels of the borrower—he has it recorded regularly, and thinks he is safe; but no, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, down comes the landlord, like a hawk, with a distrainer for rent in his pocket, and sweeps all away. Again, suppose a tenant borrows of a neighbor some farming implements to use for a few days; wo betide him, and his poor neighbor's plough, if his landlord has an execution against him—that omnipotent instrument in the potent hands of a landlord, covers all, and away they go to sacridice. Again, a drover goes from New York to Delaware county, and purchases of some needy tenants, live stock for which he pays, and then wends, with his brute companions, his winding way to Gotham. Surely I hear you say, he is safe; they certainly cannot injure the drover,—don't be quite so fast. As the leper of the East contaminates all who come in contact with him, so the tenant of Delaware seems to bring under our present laws, destruction upon all who have transactions with him. Yes, the landlord can follow the drover, and with a bit of white paper, carry of the cattle, and even if no rent is immediately due, yet if n six months it will accrue, then the stock is subject to an execution of the landlord. I might continue at great length in this way, showing in what different ways the landlord possesses, under our present ensystem of laws, the power of grinding his tenants to the dust. In 1840, we petitioned to repeal these iniquitous laws, but the sapient committee to whom the petitions were referred, decided that their repeal would be unconstitutional.

I have been opposed to carrying out our measures by the force of arms; it is not, in the present enlightened age, the true means. We must use argument; we must eighter the subject; bring it up for discussion before the people, and then we may expect to succeed. Many of the anti-ronters of Delaware have formed an Association, called made up to obide by the principle of anti-rent through good and evil report. Mr. Rreaman, of Brook Farm then addressed the meetmade up to abide by the principle of anti-rent through good and evil report.

Mr. Ryckinax, of Brook Farm, then addressed the meeting. He said thatfrom a caseful investigation of the faculties which Good has bestowed upon man, and his capacity for happiness, he had arrived at the conclusion, that all the raisery which we see and which may occur, arises solely from obstructions placed between the material elements and man. Our laws are all calculated to promote menopoly, they are unequal, and consequently unjust.—The same principles of monopoly, force and fraud, which characterizes the British government, characterizes our own to a great extent. The great evil appears to be that the masses, the productive classes, are in a thousand ways taxed and impoverished without adequate representation. They are not taxed, as it were, directly, but by accumulated machinery and accumulated capital, which crush the very form of humanity out of the working classes, and it becomes us now to stand up for the right. We have to organize for a revolution peculiar in its character; and our means must be peculiar. A plan for an industrial Congress will be submitted to you in the course of the deliberations of the Convention, which, I trust, will meet the views of all. If our plans for the melioration of man succeed, we will want no custom-house, no navy, no army, nor any such thing—ull men will be kind, courteous, and good, and every thing be blessedness and peace. We would repeal all naturolization laws, and make the elective franchise despend on useful industry. He who could prove that he was usefully employed, might vote, and none others.

Mr. Evans, the editor of Young Justice, then addressed the meeting. After saying that, as almost all came with some favorate reform, it would be necessary, in order to effect any thing, to discuss the various plans fairly, and endeavor, as much as possible, to meet each other's view. He said that the National Reform Association maintains that the possession of the public domain by the people is fellow in a bad state of society; but he hardly thought their plan a feasible one.

The Convention then adjourned, and met in the evening at 7; o'clock, when they were addressed by Park Godwin, (decum teness of the Ecening Post) who entered into divers inscrutable matters, much to the edification of all correct.

The decline in Govern-ment and good State stocks is the best criterion of the stock market. The fancies are up to-day and down to-morrow, as the strongest party of speculators may de-sire; but a steady falling off in State securities, is good evidence that the market is affected from some cause, which cannot be easily removed. This cause, so far as we are able to judge, is the position of our foreign rela-tions; and the excitement and anxiety felt in financial circles upon this subject, creates a feverish state of prices and a disposition to realize on investments.

sideration several acts which were laid before them. A report from the President and Directors was submitted to the meeting. The acts presented requiring a vote were unanimously accepted. The following are the acts ac-unanimously accepted. The following are the acts accepted:

An act entitled "An act to amend the act incorporating the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company," passed by the Legislature of Virginia on the 20th January, 1844.

An act entitled "An act to confirm an act of the General Assembly of the State of Virginia," &c., passed by the Legislature of Maryland on the 8th February, 1844.

An act entitled "An act confirming and assenting to an act of the Legislature of Virginia," &c., passed by the Congress of the United States, and approved by the President on the 7th day of February, 1845.

Also, an act of the Legislature of Maryland, entitled "An act to provide for the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to Cumberland, and for other purposes."

The most important of these acts is undoubtedly the one providing for the completion of the Canal to Cumberland. The report of the Fresident states that the whole cost of the Canal, as far as it has progressed, is nearly ten millions of dollars, as follows:

nearly ten millions of dollars, as follows :

tonnage may navigate the entire length of the canal when completed, and also that with single locks, 6,000,000 tons, and with double locks 10,000,000 tons can be transported on the canal during a navigable year. The report does not state how the canal is going to be completed, whether by money borrowed on the bonds of the compa ny, or by contracts for the labor to be paid for in the the bonds themselves. A revenue from the work is anticipated by its friends, in a much shorter time than heretofore deemed possible. The company are confident of obtaining security satisfactory to the Governor and Treasurer of the State, guaranteeing the transportation of one hundred and ninety-five thousand tons of tonnage a year for five years. The transportation of this amount of tonnage will give the company an income of $195,000 per annum, which is about $60,000 more than is neces. sary to pay the interest on the new bonds.

The completion of the Ohio and Chesapeake Canal is looked upon by the citizens of Baltimore very unfavo.

rably, and must ever find a powerful rival in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. The Canal Company have a loan of $1,700,000 to raise. The object of the loan is to complete the canal to Cumberland, at which loan is to complete the cansi to Cumberland, at which place it is expected that it will secure a coal trade, the profits on which will make the proposed loan a safe investment. At the last session of the Maryland Legislature, the prior liens of the State were waived, so as to make the bonds for the $1,700,000 a first mortgage debt. make the bonds for the $1,700,000 a first mortgage debt. Very many doubts are entertained as to the value of these bonds. The Canal, even when finished to Cumberland will have a formidable opponent in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which, by means of lateral and private roads, is carried to the mouths of the mines; and from whose cars, filled there, the coal is not removed, until it is dumped into the hold of the vessel, in which it is to be exported from Baltimore. The Canal, on the contrary must depend upon lateral roads for some ten or twelve miles from the mines to its basin, where a transhipment must take place; and there must afterwards be a subsequent shovelling of the coal from the Canal boat to the coasting vessel, to the waste and injury of the article-By a contract with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, the lateral roads and mines in connection with By a contract with the Battimore and Onio Railroad Company, the lateral roads and mines in connection with them will be enabled to send coal to market without interruption during the year, which, as is well known, cannot be done if the canal is used. Three months of the year, at least, this is closed by ice. We observe that the Councils of Baltimore, entering heartily into the competition, propose to make the city a free port for the trans portation of coal and other articles that would be proper to the canal. Under these circumstances it is much might be taken by the contractors, but this, it is said. would only make it worse; because the contractors would have to hypothecate it to raise ready money, at bonds were sold-and such things have happened-the bondholder would hold the bonds without the security on which they were based, via the canal completed. So, it would seem, the bonds might be even worse to lend on.
